

Sinclair Broadcast Group's recent actions clearly demonstrate how media consolidation inhibits our ability to get relevant, local and unbiased news.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. When large companies control what is shown on local channels, decisions are made based on the amount of money to be made, rather than what the American public needs to know. News these days seems to revolve around sponsors than it does around actual reporting.

Sinclair's latest actions have brought to my attention how badly this situation needs to be resolved. Please consider toughening media ownership laws and stop letting companies like Sinclair get away with 'campaigning' without being held accountable. Thank you.
